You’re Invited!

Take advantage of this pilot program September 5–6.

Local Food Leader Training

Sept. 5, 8 a.m.-12:30 p.m.: This half-day workshop is offered in the morning and is for anyone interested in partnering and developing our community food systems in Alaska.

Participants will leave this program with awareness, understanding and the confidence to work with various organizations, individuals and institutions to develop their local community food systems. The only requirements are that participants are excited about creating strong community food systems in Alaska and have decent internet access.

Training is in two parts, one day in person plus four (4) online modules.

Max 40 participants.

Community Food Systems Training

Sept. 5, 1:30-5:30 p.m. and Sept. 6, 8 a.m.-4 p.m. (lunch included)

This workshop is geared for those already working in community food systems and seeking additional facilitation or technical skills to support their work.

Participation in the Local Food Leader Training is preferred but not required. Participants will leave this program with new skills and the confidence to work with various communities to develop place-based food systems and with resources to complete projects related to systemic food system change, including facilitation, strategic planning, community food systems assessment, design thinking and evaluation.

Training is in two parts, the two-day workshop in person plus four (4) online modules.

Max 20 participants.

This is a pilot program and we don’t know if these classes will be offered in Alaska again, so grab a seat today and let’s dive in together!

Seating is limited.
