

Snedden Guest Lecture Series Presents: Free Public Lecture

Pictures from Life's Other Side:

A discussion with Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer Preston Gannaway

Wednesday, March 2, 2011

Noel Wien Library

7 p.m.

Pulitzer Prize-winning photojournalist Preston Gannaway has worked as a documentary newspaper photographer for the past 10 years. Gannaway believes the daily newspaper is an inclusive medium that brings visual storytelling to a diverse audience. She currently works for The Virginian-Pilot newspaper in Norfolk. In 2008, Gannaway's intimate photo story on the St. Pierre family, Remember Me, was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for feature photography. Her work has been honored in numerous other national and international competitions, including Pictures of the Year International's One Week's Work and an award of excellence in Best Multimedia Project. A native of North Carolina, she began her career at the Coalfield Progress in rural southwest Virginia after earning a BA in fine art photography at Virginia Intermont College.

These lectures are made possible by a generous endowment from Helen Snedden in honor of her late husband, former Fairbanks Daily News-Miner owner, publisher, and journalist C.W. Snedden.

Department of Journalism • 101 Bunnell Building • 474-7761

*The University of Alaska Fairbanks is accredited by the Northwest Commission on Colleges and Universities.
UAF is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer and educational institution.*