About Us

The UAF College of Liberal Arts is among the largest of the eight colleges and schools at UAF, with more than 1,500 students and 160 faculty and staff members in 23 academic departments. We provide graduate and undergraduate degree programs in the arts, humanities, behavioral and social sciences. In addition to providing nearly 70 percent of the baccalaureate core curriculum requirements at UAF, the college's mission includes conducting research that furthers the understanding of Alaska and the circumpolar region in a changing global context. This research mission provides students and faculty with learning opportunities beyond the classroom that foster responsibility, involvement and commitment to place.
