A small business workshop May 4 in Fairbanks will cover how to take an idea and turn it into a new business venture.

Adam Krynicki, the director of technology and energy for the Small Business Development Center, will discuss how to develop business ideas and examine their practicality. The Ideas to Business workshop will begin at 5:30 p.m. at the small business center, at 3750 Bonita St.

The workshop is hosted by the University of Alaska Fairbanks Cooperative Extension Service and the Small Business Development Center. The fee is $25 and online registration is available at http://bit.ly/ces-workshops. For more information, contact Kathryn Dodge at 907-474-6497 or kdodge@alaska.edu.
