Catalogue Course description:
These three background courses provide fundamental disciplinary perspectives; make students conversant in a discipline in which they have little-to-no experience; build a common vocabulary and frameworks for interdisciplinary sustainability science.

Course Objectives and Format:
This course is designed to provide you with a background in anthropology and a sense of its different approaches. We will spend our five weeks exploring domains of cultural anthropology that focus on the relationship between humans and their environment. We will attempt to define “culture” and examine the degree to which cultural domains (economics, politics, religion, social organization, kinship, etc.) mediate the interactions with and the perceptions of the environment. As a starting point, we will question the nature-culture dichotomy that has been a central dogma of anthropology for over sixty years. We will then evaluate two of the most central methodological components of the discipline – ethnographic fieldwork and the comparative method – and see how these components may help us better understand and evaluate the anthropological value of “resilience” and “sustainability.” Finally, we will examine the cultural production of environmental knowledge in situations of (rapid) social change: What are the underlying mechanisms of contemporary learning and transmission of land-based knowledge? Why does the ritual enactment of such knowledge matter in the study of global change?

Following the comparative scope of anthropology, this five-week module is conceived as a voyage that will shed light on the Circumpolar North through a series of ethnographic detours. Two levels of comparison will be developed and juxtaposed: a) Within the Circumpolar North through case studies from the Canadian Arctic, the Russian North, Far East Russia/Kamchatka (where Dr. Plattet has extended fieldwork experience); b) With non-Circumpolar worlds through examples from Indonesia, Sudan, and other “Southern” places.

The primary aims of the course are:
• Gain an understanding of the anthropological holistic approach
• Gain insights into the anthropology of human-environment interactions
• Learn methodological and theoretical tools that will help you better understand and evaluate the anthropological value of “resilience,” “adaptation,” and “sustainability”

• Acquire a reflexive awareness of RAP’s key concepts

Recommended Books:

Obtaining the books:
There are several other options for you to obtain the books, including:
• Order through Gulliver’s Books, 3525 College Road, 474-9574 (usually takes a week)
• Order online at http://www.amazon.com (free shipping!)
• Order a used copy through http://www.bookfinder.com

Purchasing the books is not mandatory for this 5-week module. All required articles will be placed each week on Blackboard (http://classes.uaf.edu/) and Electronic Reserve (http://eres.uaf.edu/).

Course Web Site on Blackboard: You have all been enrolled in a Blackboard site for this class. Our class web site can be used to maintain communication with classmates, and may be used periodically to post class announcements and materials. If you have any questions about how to access or use Blackboard, let me know.

Grades will be based on the following scale:
• 98-100% A+
• 94-97% A
• 91-93% A-
• 88-90% B+
• 84-87% B
• 81-83% B-
• 78-80% C+
• 74-77% C
• 71-73% C-
• 60-70% D
• 59% and below F

Your grade for the course will be based on the following assignments:
• Participation, incl. weekly tasks 50%
• 1 Film Reaction Paper 15%
• Final Paper 35%

Explanation of Assignments:
• Participation and Weekly Tasks: Attendance is taken for granted in this course and is heavily weighted in your final grade; therefore, if you are not present in class, your participation grade will suffer. The class participation component of your grade will be based on evidence that you have read, understood, and thought about the assigned readings in advance of class discussion, as well as on your active participation in discussion. There will also be small weekly tasks assigned, such as brainstorming on the key themes of the course, and these will count in your participation grade as well. If you miss a class, it will be your responsibility to obtain notes from a classmate.

• Film Reaction Paper: We will view one film in class and you will write a 2-3 page paper reacting to and discussing the film in light of class discussions and readings. More complete instructions for this assignment will be handed out in class.

• Final paper: Write an in-depth paper (10-15 pages) on one of the themes examined during this module. Make copies of a 1-page outline for the entire class. More complete instructions for this assignment will be handed out in class.

Support Services:
Student Support Services are available at UAF: http://www.uaf.edu/sssp/
These services include: free tutorial services; academic advising, mentoring, and personal support; direct financial assistance to qualified low-income participants; use of laptop computers, labs, and other technology resources; and cultural and social engagement. The office is located at 512 Gruening Building, and the phone number is 474-6844.
See also http://www.uaf.edu/catalog/catalog_10-11/services/serv01.html for more information about Tutoring services.

Writing Center:
Students can get help with their writing at The Writing Center (801 Gruening):
http://www.alaska.edu/english/studentresources/writing/
You can make an appointment (474-5314) to go over a paper with someone at any stage in the writing process, from rough outline to final draft. You can also print up to 25 pages at a crack for free. I highly recommend taking advantage of this service.

Academic Honesty & Plagiarism:
I expect you to do your own work in accordance with the UAF Student Code of Conduct: http://www.uaf.edu/catalog/current/academics/regs3.html (see also Class Schedule Fall 2010, p. 117).
It goes without saying that cheating and plagiarism cannot be tolerated in any form in scholarly work. Be sure you understand what constitutes plagiarism and what are acceptable forms of citing published (and unpublished) material. For an explanation of what constitutes plagiarism see: http://library.uaf.edu/ls101-plagiarism
For an explanation of how to properly cite sources see: http://library.uaf.edu/ls101-citing

Disability Services:
The University of Alaska is committed to providing equal access for students with disabilities. If you experience a disability and will need special accommodations, please contact me during my office hours (see Class Schedule Fall 2010, p. 32).
