3. OFFICER REPORTS

A. Martin Klein, President, Staff Council (206/1)

Martin’s report is attached. There are two attachments that are quite lengthy, they are strictly as a reference. The attachments include Business Council’s reviews and a memo from Chancellor Rogers summarizing the Executive Leadership workshop. There is a follow up budget meeting on April 30. Martin encourages everyone to read the memo. The memo and attached notes summarize the direction the administration is looking at going in FY12.

B. Maria Russell, President-Elect, Staff Council

Maria wanted to note that Open Enrollment is in progress. There was a concern that there wasn’t a handbook this year. There was only three different links to click on. There is a Brown Bag Lunch on Open Enrollment and Health Care in Wood Center E/F from 12:00-1:00 tomorrow. Maria did testify at the board of regents meeting. There was some concern at the Staff Alliance level that staff would not be getting their 3% increases. To date the budget has passed with the 3% increases. Staff Alliance only had to report Mau updates. Juella asked if there was a lot of concern about the Open enrollment changes. Carol noted that it is a bit confusing, but is all available at the website. Juella proposed that the issue might be evaluated in Staff Affairs. There could have been a handbook equivalent. Juella encourages a response to this group.

4. GOVERNANCE REPORTS

A. Jon Dehn, President, Faculty Senate

Jon confirmed that Cathy and Jon have had their term extended. President Hamilton addressed the last Faculty Senate and gave good and sobering advice for the future. Jon noted that much of the new business in the Senate was updating bylaws, an approved Minor in Engineering, an Associates in Drafting and evaluating some faculty that do not fit under the faculty collective bargaining agreements. The Outstanding Senator Award this year goes to Jennifer Reynolds and Ann Christie for updating the bylaws. There is some discussion on the Academic Master Plan. The Academic Master Plan is statewide which drives programming and funding for programs. The plan will be given to the Board of Regents in June. It is unclear what our input will be after that time. It is available at the Faculty Senate website. The future of the bookstore still remains unclear. The Board of Regents meeting focused on budget in Juneau, the president’s proposal to raise tuition by 10% in the coming two years, and the second amendment issue of concealed weapons on campus. There was a presentation and indications that there will be protest on campus on Monday and Tuesday but nothing seems to have occurred. Juella asked if Faculty Senate is coming up with a policy for concealed guns use. The Chancellor has asked Faculty Senate to purpose a policy. Demonstrations were held last week, to protest tuition increases.

B. Todd Vorisek, President, ASUAF

No report at this time.

5. GUEST(S)

A. Brian Rogers, UAF Chancellor

The capital legislative session was a significant disappointment. There was no immediate funding the Life Sciences building. The legislature funded 3 billion in capital projects across the state. There was 10 million given to UAF for funding the Energy Technology facility. UAF was given 22 million for differed maintenance which is only 3 quarters what we need to stay even.

The operating budget did fund ACEP, Cooperative Extension and the Summer Research Academy. The university requested funding according to formula for paying increases for bargaining agreements and exempt staff, funded at 60% total cost minus $492,000. It’s unclear why it’s minus $492,000.

We will be moving forward on the budget without all our costs covered. The Executive Leadership workshop will come together to bring balance to the budget. There is a growing gap in our budget due to lack of support from the legislature and the public. On the good side, the Management of Institutional Funds Act passed, it only took 20 years. This puts us in line with other laws in other states. The legislature increased the debt limit in a given year, providing we can give it back. The energy act made UAF eligible for the energy funding so energy improvements can be made. We are all looking forward to the transition of President Gamble. It will be interesting to see what his priorities are for the university. Chancellor Rogers also noted that he sent out a message to the Dean and Director’s supporting the attendance of Staff Appreciation Day.

Gary asked why the Life Sciences building is such a heavy lift. Chancellor Rogers is at a loss why the funding is harder to come by. The Geo Bond on the November ballot has 88 million for the Life Sciences building, 60 million for UAA Sports Arena, 24 million for the Matsu Campus Arts Facility 18 million for the Kenai campus Student Housing and 5 million for the Kenai Tech Center and 5 million for Prince William Sound deferred maintenance. All requests are linked to research and educational facilities.

Martin asked the Chancellor to address the pull back. There is a big unknown in the budget right now. The legislature adopted the intent that every dollar that we raise from non-state, non-federal sources the state will give us a dollar and a quarter. Over time this will reduce state funding. It was first adopted in the house where they had a single appropriation. Once in the Senate it was moved to 7 appropriations. These appropriations are like buckets of money that you can’t move from one bucket to another. 3% of each MAU’s funds that have been withdrawn from each bucket and stuck into an appropriation for the President to decided what to do with.

6. COMMITTEE REPORTS (206/2)
A. Staff Affairs, Heather Leavengood

Please see the attached report. The compensation outline deadline at the end of the summer and it should make great resource for staff in general. Unionization is a continual conversation. There is some staff concern of union representatives coming to the workplace and the home. Martin added that on the Statewide Labor Relations site that lists the clarification of ASEA’s intention to unionize all staff. Maria noted that we are only dealing with ASEA union now.

A. Rural Affairs, Susan Baird

The increased rates will cover increased costs of shuttle service and other services.
