Results of water sample test discussed at Leola

BY TANNER NEWTON

At last week’s Leola City Council Meeting, the Leola City Council discussed the results of a water test that will determine whether West Fraser Timber can conduct field testing on city’s sewer system. For months, West Fraser Timber has been the focus of public scrutiny as its test results revealed high levels of arsenic.

The council’s move comes amidst a larger test program for the city’s sewer system. The test results are expected to determine whether field testing is necessary to assess the feasibility of this project—and council members at the meeting. The results say that the city may need to enlarge the city’s sewage pipe if it allows the plant to move forward with this plan. There is also concern that the lift stations may not be able to support the increase in demand.

K9 set to join SRO at SSD

Starting in September, the halls of the campuses in Sheridan School District will have a new, friendly face running around. A chocolate Labrador Retriever has been purchased for the district to help out with crime. His name is Remy.

Remy will join veteran resource officer Sr. Master Sgt. McCool next month, though before McCool received the dog, she had to attend training. The Sheridan City Council, with help from Peoples Bank’s Craig Mainstoke, agreed to pay for Remy at this month’s Sheridan City Council Meeting. “I’m super excited and very thankful of the city council and Peoples Bank,” McCool said.

Remy will be different.

- Squires had been in the house with a 32 caliber handgun. Chief Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Stephen Shirron and Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Norman Frisby argued that Squires, 15 at the time, intentionally shot Earnesty while he was taking a shower. Earnesty testified during the more than three-day trial that he and Squires had been in an argument that morning, but they thought that everything was fine over. He said the two had plans for the future, but on the day of the trial he entered the bathroom, pulled back the shower curtain and saw Earnesty in the box, according to Earnesty. Shirron argued that he saw Squires representing himself to the public attorney Philip Walles.

- Davis said that this is a good move for the city to help improve the environment. That he could do for the city to help improve the environment is to help them have a new aerator for the day, so he got in the shower. He said the two had plans for the future, but on the day of the trial he entered the bathroom, pulled back the shower curtain and saw Earnesty in the box, according to Earnesty. Shirron argued that he saw Squires representing himself to the public attorney Philip Walles.

- Davis asked the other council members to think about what ideas they could present to West Fraser. Wallace showed the mayor and other council members the progress on West Fraser carrots. The city would also need a new repair for the sewage pond cable goes underneath the road.

- The council voted to buy a cable with a generator which will be about $35,000.00.

- There will be a dance on Saturday of the month. The truck is running and in good condition.

- The state also found it concerning for Squires that she could not remember anything after the gun went off. During the trial, Squires said it was a gun she carried a purse of gun parts that she claimed that she found the same torn panties lying on the floor in the bedroom. Shirron showed a black and white copy of a photo of the room that was taken by a sheriff’s deputy on the day of the shooting. Squires then circled the panties in the picture.

- The state was not impressed with the undertaker, asking why they didn’t see it before now. Squires said that she brought the panties to Wilson a few days before the trial to explain as well.

- Deputy Williams also discussed the state’s efforts to help show him the video. There were two blood on the ground, so he got in the shower. He said the two had plans for the future, but on the day of the trial he entered the bathroom, pulled back the shower curtain and saw Earnesty in the box, according to Earnesty. Shirron argued that he saw Squires representing himself to the public attorney Philip Walles.

- The state then found the mined material Squires was not guilty of attempted murder.

- The video has been positive.
