

From Fugitives to Road Builders:

Alaskan Ethnohistory and Archaeology of an African American Experience

African American History Month Lecture with M.C. MoHagani Magnetek

UAF Anthropology PhD student, M.C. MoHagani Magnetek presents an ethnohistorical analysis of African American history chronicling the journey of once enslaved Africans who found their way from enslavement in the Deep South to whaling ships leaving northern U.S, ports bound for the Arctic.

Magnetek will also speak about the upcoming ALCAN Highway Archaeological excavation and UAF summer field school centered around winter encampment site of the African American soldiers of 97th Regiment U.S. Army Corp of Engineers.

QUESTIONS?

Contact Jamie Bennett at uaf-anthropology@alaska.edu

Friday, February 21st, 2025
7-9pm | Schaible Auditorium

MC: Jameka Lache Horton
Music by UAF student, EVERYTHING

Learn more about Anthropology at UAF!

DEPARTMENT OF
ANTHROPOLOGY