Tours spotlight cramped police station

Some shortcuts possible dangers

By BRIAN O'DONOGHUE

The city reportedly happy about the Fairbanks Po-lice Department's preference for drying bloody clothes in bags. strung inside a basement utility room, but it's a significant im-provement over the method provement over the method once used.

"We used to let the blood drip right on the floor," recalled Assistant Chief James Welch.

For those who work inside Fairbanks aging police head-quarters, Welch said, the department's pump room solution to containing blood-born pathosens is "probably the most egregens is "probably the most egre-gious" of the building's many structural deficiencies. But the bizarre use made of the small utility room—which also contains a sloping wall of sand bags dating back to the days when the nearby evidence locker served as a shooting range hardly rates mention on the list of public hazards and law enforcement detriments of the city's cramped cop shop.

On Tuesday city voters will consider a $7 million bond proposal for construction of a new police station, which emerged as the top recommendation of a recent task force weighing the city's capital priorities. Given the stakes, the News-Miner took part in the department's open house Saturday for a behindthe-scenes tour.

The failings of the current building, which dates back to the 1962, start with the location of the entrance on an out-of-theor the entrance on an out-of-the-way alley connecting 5th and 6th avenues. "It's hard for people to find," said Lt. Ray Miller, observing that the city's utility sale took away the one good landmark for directions. "You can't even say the aller is "You can't even say the alley is next to MUS anymore."

Upon entering the building, prisoners, victims, people making complaints, seeking pomaking compiants, seeking po-lice reports on accidents or, per-haps, summoned to collect recovered property—all transit the same narrow corridor, passing through a locked door controlled by department recep-tionists who screen visitors though safety glass.

That shared access creates a security problem, endangering both police and the public,

'We can't separate the vic-

OPEN HOUSE—Above, Lorna Weese, fire arms instructor and dispatcher at the Fairbanks Police Department, helps Samatha McKinney, 8, hit the target with a Ruger 357 Magnum handgun equipped to be used with the BeamHit Laser Shooting System at the downtown precinct Saturday. At right, the presence of an outlet fan makes an old utility room the only available place at the police headquarters for drying bags of bloody evidence.

tims and their families from coming in contact with suspects, the media and the general public," he said. "Funneling people through those common work areas allows room for injury if someone breaks free.

The entrance corridor leads into a small room, where police logs are kept in a binder for public inspection and officers often meet with individuals to take complaints. Inside, a doorway provides access to a larger room, which serves as the building's central hub, providing access to staircases leading up and down, the station's holding cell, offices used by Welch and other supervisors and the single room available to officers writing reports.

In addition to serving as a central hallway, the hub room is outfitted with the station's breath analysis machine and a video taping system. Individuals suspected of intoxication are generally detained in the hub for the 15-minute waiting period before a blood-alcohol test is conducted. That can be a long 15 minutes when a boisterous drunk becomes impatient in the big open room.

Police work is often disronce work is often dis-turbed by intoxicated rants. "You've got firemen trying to sleep upstairs," added Miller. "It disturbs their rest."

The capacity of the station's temporary holding area—a fence-lined room fronting Sixth Avenue maxes out at about four, Miller said. When the need arises to detain more suspects the first option is handcuffing individuals to the line of rings, affixed medieval style, in the station's two-bay garage. But that's also the station's only area for forensic-investigations on vehicles, assuming wreckers manage to deliver the cars or trucks suspected of containing evidence through the station's 1 b u t See POLICE, Page B-2

Fis rea

Person back o

By TIM MOW Staff Writer

There is Yukon River salmon run.

Thanks to silver saln fishing in th reopen Mond schedule of to

Citing a chum salmon ogists had cle personal use f

The fall salmon rune arriving first. nearly over, s gist Keith Sc the personal won't pose a escapement.

Schultz sai run appears Though the population est run, an avera bers about silver run cou fishermen mal chum run

"All the river are that able surplus of Schultz said about a week l the last puls

"We'd like t fish through fishing area b up," he said.

Only a few up at the Delta outside Delta the largest bre Yukon and Ta salmon.

The Delta (only coho spawi itored by Fish state has an ar goal of 9,000 f Clearwater. coho were coun Clearwater.

"Everything coho run than

Correction

School Board incumbent candidate Jennifer Schmidt's response to the question, "Are you satisfied with the current administration? Why or why not?" was inadvertantly omitted from last Sunday's Municipal Election section. Her response follows:

"The current administration needs to build on the strengths of our district by working with the school com-munities. Some of the decisions of the past year should have been better planned and understood, so that there would be more support both now and in the future. Longstanding improvement and positive change takes the decision and commitment of more than one person."

■ Also in Sunday's election section, borough Assembly candidate Dae Miles' web site was omitted. The address is www.alaskadae.com/wealth.

The News-Miner strives to corre curacies in a timely manner. To report an error in the newspaper, call the newsroom at 459-7572 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily, 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, fax 452-7917, or e-mail

Panel to recommend North Pole salary cha

By MARIMIAN L. GRIMES

Six months after its inception, the North Pole salary study committee will return to the City Council next week with several suggested changes to the city's pay scales.

Committee chairwoman Diane Williams will present five recommendations from the committee at Monday's City Council meeting:

- The pay scale should be stretched out to cover 20 years rather than ending at the 10-year mark, as it does currently.
- The City Council should consider, on a yearly basis, whether to give cost-of-living increases to employees.
- The city should re-examine its health insurance benefits, and consider paying all or part of the premium for coverage for employees' family members.

■ The city should look at a way to compensate employees for education and certification

■ The city should pay shift differentials to employees who work swing and graveyard

The recommendations came after Thursday presentations by several city employees regarding the pay scale.

Unresolved is what the city should do with its two-tier pay scale, and how much each em-ployee should be making. City employees are currently paid under one of two pay scales.

Those hired prior to Aug. 1 under one—schedule A—and after that date are paid unde schedule B.

Employees at the meeting two scales should be merged.

Fire department repre Chambers suggested that a moved onto salary schedule be stretched out to cover 20 y who are making the maximum scale would have their pay fro of their time at the city, he whose current pay rates do i years of service on the nev

Y2K or not, don't forget to take proper winter precaution

THE COMING OF A.D. 2000 has been discussed A.D. nau-

If we'd stop to think about the lying in the slush last Sunday

Keep copies of all financial nim. He will be we only knew him period of time. It is neet and let a family or go. But Jack is at peace in no more pain. Jack and his ife, Blanca, put their marriage est and learned to live with the lanca stood by Jack throughout s sickness and his passing ney forgave each other for the ist mistakes in their lives. Jack rned his life to the Lord and ent to church every Sunday itil he passed away.

Jack was in the United States

n't pay

sticker

e for car

irance.

Jack is predeceased by his parents, Virginia Moses-Mayo and Windy Mayo, and adoptive parents Edward William Koester and Evla Mae Cravens. He is survived by the adoptive sister Director of the control o by his adoptive sister Diane Koester of Calif.; daughter, Koester of Calif.; daughter, Chrystal Marie Koester of Calif.; brothers, Don Moses of Fair-banks, Milton Moses Jr. of Tanana, Robert Leroy Mayo of Fairbanks; sisters, Sharon R. Tyone and husband Jay E. Tyone Allistate of Glennallen, Marilyn Fabian of Fairbanks, Shirley M. Lee-Mayo of Fairbanks, Jeannie L. Mayo of Galena, and Sally Ann Wilkins of Fairbanks; uncles, Jason Joseph of Tanana, and Godfrey (Moe) Joseph of Fairbanks; aunt Helen S. Peters of Tanana.

it could be a best eller. But it's free

To get your free catalog, write:

all the people of Nenana for helping out Don Moses and Milton Moses Jr.; thanks to Uncle Moe for singing our native

On behalf of my sister-in-law Blanca Trevino-Koester we'd like to thank everyone in Nenana and Uncle Jason and the Doyon Limited for helping out in our tect any mechanical problems with the vehicle. No one was injured in the incident, which caused over $5,000 in damage, police said. Driver hospitalized been uriving at aii.

Police cited Jan Thies for driving with a revoked license after she plowed through the plate glass window in a 1978 chevy pickup about 2:45 p.m. Saturday, Thies told officer Jon

Terland that her brakes failed as she was pulling in to check her mail, but the Fairbanks pa-trolman later said he didn't de-

A woman remains hospitalized after rear-ending a loaded fuel transport near Mile 3 Richardson Highway late Friday.

Frank Duxbury, a truck driver for CEM Leasing, said he was just pulling away after making a required stop for a highway railrequired step for a linguisty and road crossing when he heard the screech of brakes behind his creech of brakes behind his loaded semi-trailer. "I stomped on the gas, but it did no good,' he said.

While floor cuff restraints are also available in either of the two basement interview rooms, he said, maneuvering a hostile or intoxicated prisoner down the tight staircase can prove tricky. The options all carry drawbacks when police contend with groups of

"In the situation of, say, a large fight with two parties and multiple suspects," the lieu-tenant said, "we don't have any place to separate these individ-uals until we can tell what we

The layout of the building

poses further security problems

Citizens seeking records or property pass by both the bank of standing lockers used for temporary storage of evidence, as well as the old Hotpoint refrigerator housing perishable evidence. Ar-chived records are also stored in an open room accessible from the same hallway. While the depart-ment's documentation of eviof a legal nature.

Continued from Page B-1 narrow garage doors.

Nila Mae Noble, the driver of the Ford Fiesta that slammed into the rear of the semi Friday about 10:40 p.m., was taken to Fairbanks Memorial Hospital. As of Saturday night, she was re-ported in stable in the hospital's intensive care unit.

Disturbance.

A disturbance reported Friday, A disturbance reported r rinay, about 5:30 p.m., at a Lakeview Terrace residence led Alaska State Troopers to arrest Heather C. Sandford, 28, on three counts of domestic assault, and additional charges of criminal mis-chief, criminal trespass and driving while intoxicated

A traffic stop near Carrs Food-land resulted in the arrest of Charles Kingsland, 37, for driving while intoxicated shortly before 4 a.m. Saturday, police

Police arrested Everett L. Herbert, 27, on Saturday for driving while intoxicated, driving with a suspended license, refusing to submit to a blood-alcohol test and Benjamin Goodson, 27, for driving while intoxicated, police

Assault

Sung H. Chun, 50, was arrested for domestic assault Saturday, shortly after 3:30 a.m., after police received a report of a man fighting with a woman near the Koreana Restaurant.

Trespass

Richard Nicholai, 25, of Fairbanks, was arrested Friday for criminal trespass and for being drunk on a licensed premises after troopers were summoned to deal with a man who wouldn't leave Pike's Landing.

Stray pistol
Friday evening, about 6 p.m., police received a .22-caliber pistol found by a Sunset Drive resident.

Violation

Investigating a 911 hang-up call received Friday, about 2 am, troopers arrested Deanne M. Lindstrom, 38, of Fairbanks for violating her conditions of re-

-By Brian O'Donoghue

POLICE: Headquarters

pt. 1657, Pueble, CO 21000

NTER TOYS

OOF THAN EVER BEFORE!

nks' second annual er trade show to help u enjoy winter!

) businesses featuring...

ES & SPORTING GOODS...

s to arctic gear!

5 & SERVICES...

ication to how to quilt!

ow!

o audio systems!

hot tubs!

Friday, Oct. 1 Saturday, Oct. 2 Sunday, Oct. 3

Admission $3 Kids 12 & Under FREE

hance to win a 🕙 E FOOTBALL 11(11)

R TWO to Seattle, accommodations at ifth Avenue, AND two tickets to the it could be a best seller. But it's free. You can't buy the Consumer Information Catalog. But you can get it, free! Send for your guide to over 200 free or low-cost government publications. Write:

Consumer Information Contor Department EEST, Fachle, 60 2 (00)

dence has improved in recent years, Miller said, police would be more comfortable if the public wasn't road or the intrits of the station.

The staff amenities that do exist show years of hard use.

Take the basement room that served as the town jail until a judge ruled, according to Miller, that it possessed conditions shocking the conscience. Those dank quarters now serve as the officers locker room You've got one shower, one sink and one toilet for 34 officers," said Miller, standing under the steel beams supporting a piece of the ceiling that once gave way.

Conditions are better in the smaller locker room used by the smaler locker room used by the department's four women officers; It's paneled and boasts a tiled shower. However, both locker rooms are prone to odors wafting from the station's big sewage lift, located in an adiating vanit joining vault.

The aging station is rife with examples of necessity-driven invention. The department's 20year-old Universal gym is nestled alongside the big ducts inside the main utility room with newer standing bicycles. The underground chamber that once served as a shooting range has evolved into the main evidence locker.

Of course, there is the utility room drafted for a use the building's architect never imagined. The presence of a forced-air vent, expelling air from the station, made it the department's obvious choice for drying blood-soaked "Occasionally, we get guff from city employees about it," Miller said, gesturing to a brown bag of evidence dangling amidst the utility pipes.

"But you need to hang this stuff in an area where nobody will be breathing the air," the lieutenant explained, citing the hazards of exposure to HIV, hepatitis and other blood-borne dis-

FAIRBANKS Daily News - Miner A MediaNews Group newspaper (ISSN-1970 5496) 200 North Cushman St., Fairbanks, Alasks 99701 Published Daily except on Memoral Day, Labor Day, Christmas & New Years unless they fall on a Sundey by Fairbanks Daily, News-Miner

Customer Help
We will respond promptly and fairly to requests by readers and advertisers. Requests may be made by mail or telephone. Our mailing address is: P.O. Box 70710 Fairbanks, AK 99707-0710

BUSINESS HOURS 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Thuraday 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Friday

Management:

1907)458-6661 or FAX(907)452-5054
A Fairbanks Daily News-Miner operator is on duty to assist you. The operator's hours are Monday through Friday 8 a.m. 10 5:30 p.m.

For Newsroom assistance, call 455-6651 and your party's extension.
Newsroom FAX (507) 452-7317.
Manaping Editor. Kelly Bostian...Ext. 7586
Local News.-City Editor. Rob Boyce... 7575.
Letters to the Editor—Sam Bishop... 7574
Obtiusriss—Mary Beth Smetzer... 7540.
Meeting Announcementa—
Ronde Catalano... 7572
Outdoors—Tim Movery... 7587

ying in the siush last

Sports Hotling.....456-8333 Circulation Assistance

Our Customer Service and Carrier Service telephone number is: 459-7566

Customer Service Hours: Monday through Friday 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. Ubberibers who fail to rescrie papers by 7 a.m. are requested to dial 459-7500 before 10 a.m.

Subscription Rates IIn Ac

Mail Subscriptions

Daily only price $22.78 per year in Alaska cines seesings paid at Farrians, AK. Peatrin, Sand service changes to faitherise Daily No.
Soc. 78.28. Reharms, AK. 997.
For Itaali resse eleventers, contest our silications.

Fairbanks Doll Study Bentley Mall during I charity table will be of the Tanana Valley formation, call 456-74 10:30 a.m.—40 P at the Drop In Cafi comers welcome. Info

Monday

Cancelect—Assistational Engineers me special 'design profes special' design profes plenned for Thursdey, '40 Plus Sigles v. Mell to form a car pofor Monday Night Fr. are welcome. For me 488:7594.

Noon—Internation munication-leebreak weekly at the Royal For communication and procommunication and processing the process of the process o communication and printer information: 455-6311.

Noon—Chamber of Directors meeting i

banks Princess Hotel

banks Princess Hotel
106.
Noon—College Rod
at Fairbenks Princess I hank flove and Rep. Ji cuss the proposed F thenky Information: 452
1-3 p.m.—Dee Mile sembly Seat D will forum on the Aleska thority vote in the Noel torium. The forum will I public policy of efficier ources. Panelists incl
Hove, Nillo Koponen, Richard Fineberg and I welcome to attend. Infor
2 p.m.—Fairbenks C tors Bureau Visitor Info ship and Communication ship and Communicate will meet at the FCVB fices, Key Bank Center formation: Karen Lundque 227.

tormeton: Karen Lundqu. 227.
5:30 p.m.—Registrat: paration classes will b Learning Programs of A 122 First Ave. Classes Nov. 2. Information: 4624.
6:7 p.m.—Sweet's p. Toestmastrar meets e Wendy's Restaurant (low port Way. Meeting objectment specially programs of the pro Cliscourt on Privat Host inches (FHA's discourt applies of homebuyers). To register, 2921 or (907) 330-8437.

7-8/30 p.m.—Head Injugort Group for Survivors press Aleska, Suite 3, 365-Family members are welcomed and 479-77
7-8/30 p.m.—"Growlin lets in Feirbentis," a classification is needed, call 479-77
1-8/30 p.m.—"Growlin lets in Feirbentis," a classification is needed, call 479-77
1-8/30 p.m.—"Growlin lets in Feirbentis," a classification of the feirbentis of the feirbentis

Tuesday

Caracled Chamber of

GUY SATI

has been discussed A.D. nau-