

Cultural exchange: the grounds of England
Instead of dinner, they choose a tea
By chance we create our own wonderland
The Queen of Hearts' head in the guillotine
Like thousands of subjects' heads the blade threw
The large crowd rejoices "Off with her head!"
Decenter before we take it from you
The unbound land practices how to shed
In the tea we learn how to dedicate
A system of perspective and action
Talk over tea and croissants to classmates
Each of our tables represents faction
Like a strong nation we come together
A greater unity of the writers
