Stacked course applications are reviewed by the (Undergraduate) Curricular Review Committee and by the Graduate Academic and Advising Committee. Creating two different syllabi—undergraduate and graduate versions—will help emphasize the different qualities of what are supposed to be two different courses. The committees will determine: 1) whether the two versions are sufficiently different (i.e. is there undergraduate and graduate level content being offered); 2) are undergraduates being overtaxed; 3) are graduate students being undertaxed? In this context, the committees are looking out for the interests of the students taking the course. Typically, if either committee has qualms, they both do. 18. ESTIMATED IMPACT
WHAT IMPACT, IF ANY, WILL THIS HAVE ON BUDGET, FACILITIES/SPACE, FACULTY, ETC.
This course will be added to an existing professor's workload. An overload may be paid if this takes the professor over the number of units allowed. This class will need a traditional classroom with audio/video connection. The projected enrollment in the course is hoped to generate tuition dollars sufficient to pay for the instructor's time. There should be no further impact on UAF.

19. LIBRARY COLLECTIONS
Have you contacted the library collection development officer (kljensen@alaska.edu, 474-6695) with regard to the adequacy of library/media collections, equipment, and services available for the proposed course? If so, give date of contact and resolution. If not, explain why not.
No X Yes
Current UAF library references are adequate for this course.

20. IMPACTS ON PROGRAMS/DEPTS
What programs/departments will be affected by this proposed action?
Include information on the Programs/Departments contacted (e.g., email, memo)
Students may also use this course as an elective in their current programs. Students who take this class are likely to be UAF, UAA, and APU counseling, social work, or psychology students who wish to seek Marriage and Family Therapy licensure.

21. POSITIVE AND NEGATIVE IMPACTS
Please specify positive and negative impacts on other courses, programs and departments resulting from the proposed action.
This course fits with the joint UAF/UAA counseling, social work, and psychology task force set up to design and offer required courses to obtain a license to practice Marriage and Family Therapy. Currently it is not possible to obtain this license within the State of Alaska. A UAF Faculty member from the Counseling Department will teach this course, with faculty from UAA teaching the other required courses.

JUSTIFICATION FOR ACTION REQUESTED
The purpose of the department and campus-wide curriculum committees is to scrutinize course change and new course applications to make sure that the quality of UAF education is not lowered as a result of the proposed change. Please address this in your response. This section needs to be self-explanatory. Use as much space as needed to fully justify the proposed course.
The UAF and UAA joint Marriage and Family Therapy Licensure committee approved this course for inclusion in their joint Marriage and Family Program, housed at UAA. Comprised of Counseling, Psychology, and Social Work faculty from both universities, this committee had to approve all the proposed courses before they could proceed to University level approval.

Prerequisite: Counseling F666 – Family and Network Therapy

Course Description and Goals: Ethnicity and Family Studies is designed to focus on the contribution of ethnic background to family makeup and functioning. This course fits within a larger curriculum to further prepare students for working with couples and families in a counseling setting. Major ethnic groups are studied along with the counseling, social justice, and advocacy approaches appropriate to each. In a similar fashion, the overarching cultural context of relationships, including factors such as age, gender, sexual orientation, religious & spiritual values, mental and physical characteristics, education, family values, socioeconomic status, and within group as well as between group cultural differences are examined. Theories of multicultural counseling, and systems-oriented intervention strategies (couple, family, group, and community) are considered. Counselor cultural self-awareness and the role of counseling in eliminating biases, prejudice, oppression, and discrimination are emphasized.

Self-Exploration: The course requires participating in a number of self-exploration exercises. In order to become proficient as a family therapist, it is essential to explore one’s family of origin, ethnic background, and cultural and contextual influences. Students are encouraged to explore these issues honestly and with openness. The exercises might initially seem intimidating and intrusive, but they are often the most educational and useful aspects of the course. Students are free to refrain from discussing issues that will cause feelings of being exposed and vulnerable. This is a graduate course and not intended to be a therapy experience.

Student Learning Outcomes: upon completion of this course, students will be able to identify, utilize, and explain the following objectives of Ethnicity and Family Studies based on an understanding of:

- Multicultural trends, including characteristics and concerns within and among diverse groups in the U.S. and international society.
- Personal cultural background, attitudes, beliefs, understandings, and acculturative experiences with those of persons from other cultural groups.
- Theories of multicultural counseling and social justice.
- Ethical issues in diverse families.
• Individual, couple, family, group, and community strategies for working with and advocating for diverse populations.
• Essential basic multicultural counseling competencies.
• The counselor's role in developing cultural self-awareness; promoting cultural social justice, advocacy and conflict resolution; and other culturally supported behaviors that promote optimal wellness and holistic growth.
• Various counselor roles in eliminating biases, prejudices, and processes of intentional and unintentional oppression and discrimination into a professional practice framework.
• How diverse sexual orientation lifestyle perspectives and identity development processes affect a client's life.
• How age, mental, and physical characteristics affect client experience and influence treatment.
• How culture and worldview assumptions influence clinical assessment, research strategies, and interpretation of data.

Ground Rules: (Adapted from those by Margaret Andersen, University of Delaware).

The following rules are intended to promote an atmosphere that will facilitate the learning process as well as respect the experiences of different groups in the classroom and the larger society. By the end of the first class all students need to determine if committing to the final set of rules is problematic. These principles will guide our class discussions and interactions.

1. Acknowledge that racial and ethnic oppression exists in our society.
2. Acknowledge that one of the key elements of oppression is that we are all systematically taught misinformation about race and ethnicity. This is true for both majority and minority group members.
3. While we cannot be blamed for the misinformation that we have learned, we can and should be held responsible for repeating misinformation after we have learned otherwise.
4. We will actively pursue information about racial and ethnic groups. However, the basis for this information will not be on societal learned myths or stereotypes about these groups.
5. We will share information and ideas with members of the class and we will never demean, devalue, or "put down" people for their experiences.
6. We each have an obligation to combat actively the myths and stereotypes about race and ethnicity so we can break down the barriers that impede group cooperation.
7. We will assume that all of us, regardless of our racial identity, nationality, sex, class, or cultural background, have been influenced by the racism of our society and that individuals can actively change.
8. We will create a safe atmosphere for open discussion. At times, members of the class may wish to make comments that they do not want repeated outside of the classroom. If so, the student will preface his or her remarks with a request and the class will agree not to repeat the remarks.
9. We will try to see the world through the experiences of people who have different perspectives than our own. This will mean not assuming that one's own perspective is the only or the best way to see and think.
Instructional Methods: The class will meet once a week for 3 hours. Course material will be presented in a variety of ways in order to meet the needs of different learning styles. Classes will consist of lectures, video presentations, individual activities, small group discussions, and presentations by class participants. Classes are interactive and will require full participation from all participants to help create a vital learning community.

Course Policies:

Attendance, tardiness, class participation, and late assignments. Students are expected to come to class prepared with assignments turned in before arrival. Be ready to begin promptly at 4:10 PM. If missing class is unavoidable, I must be notified before the class session. Students lose 5 participation points for every class that is missed without prior notification and two participation points for every late arrival without prior notification. Absence does not relieve the responsibility for completing all assignments before the due date or for comprehending the material presented during the class session. For any missed class, students are expected to post a 250-word response to the discussion question assigned for the week. This assignment is due before the start of the next class session. Late assignments will not be accepted without prior approval from the instructor.

Excessive absences may result in the student receiving a grade of “Incomplete” for the course.

Plagiarism. Plagiarism is representing someone else’s ideas and work as your own. Plagiarism includes not only copying verbatim, but also rephrasing the ideas of another without properly acknowledging the source. As work is prepared and submitted to meet course requirements, whether a draft or a final version of a paper or project, take care to distinguish personal ideas and language from information derived from sources. Sources include published primary and secondary materials, electronic media, and information and opinions gained directly from other people. Students are required to use the plagiarism programs available on Blackboard for each assignment.

Required Texts:

Required Readings:

(All required readings are in the dated File Folders under Session Resources on Blackboard, or available on the web.)
Recommended Movies:
Lawrence, R. (Director). (2006). Jindabyne. United States: Roadshow Pictures. [Four Australian fishermen find an Aboriginal girl's body. Too late in the day to hike back and report their find, they spend the next day fishing. They become subject to much consternation by their families and the community upon their return.]
Redford, R. (Director). (1980). Ordinary people. United States: Paramount Pictures. [The accidental death of the older son of an affluent family deeply strains the relationships among the bitter mother, the good-natured father, and the guilt-ridden younger son.]

Course Evaluation: Students will be evaluated based on four criteria: (a) class attendance and class participation, (b) Paper on Cultural Family Background (c) Assignments for the Cultural Immersion Project, and (d) the Cultural Family Assessment, including the outline and presentation.

Class attendance and class participation: Attending class, reading all required assignments, and participating in class discussions is expected. One of the primary goals of the course is for you to be comfortable and confident in your ability to discuss the course topics. Therefore, you are expected to actively participate in class discussions each week. The quality of your involvement in class is worth a maximum of 50 points toward your final grade. Please speak out and share your perspectives; it enriches the class experience for all of us.

Written papers and presentations: Students are expected to complete three big assignments during the semester: (a) a paper addressing cultural family background, (b) cultural immersion project questions and Blackboard responses, and (c) a cultural family assessment. All papers are to be typed, double-spaced, well written, and grammatically correct. Writing should conform to APA style, 6th edition (written in third person), and include citations and references.

Cultural Family Background: Students will complete a cultural background paper describing the background of parents or primary caregivers in regards to family culture and how this background affects the student both personally and professionally. If there is a multiracial background, pick the two most predominant cultures in their background. The students will research the people from their background using the following: (a) at least 7 scholarly sources (the McGoldrick is acceptable as one source); (b) interviews with their parents/caregivers and other significant family members; and (c) a basic genogram outlining 3 generations of family history. There are websites that might be useful in this endeavor. This paper must be 10–12 pages in length (not including the title page or references) and must be written in APA style, 6th edition. This paper can be written in first person.

Cultural Immersion Project: Students will select a cultural group with whom they have little or no experience. This group may different from the student in ethnicity, religion, or culture or have other significantly different cultural features (e.g., the elderly in nursing homes, disabled children, disabled adults, the homeless, etc.). Students may not use previous cultural experiences for this assignment. This project involves 3 parts. Below is a brief description of each part of the project.
Part 1: Distant Encounter: Students must read at least three scholarly resources on a cultural population of interest (the scholarly resource must be dated 2008 or later). Three significant media resources related to the culture (using the Internet or resources located in their community) must also be reviewed. For example, culturally prominent websites, online newspapers, radio/internet broadcasts, or culturally specific magazine articles may be reviewed online or purchased. Students will then answer a set of questions. This is not a paper. There is no need for a title page, abstract, citations, or a reference page in their submission. First person may be used in the answers. Based on these experiences, students will post their most interesting findings in the Cultural Immersion Project Part 1 Forum on Blackboard, and comment on the posts of at least two other students.

Part 2. Group Encounter: Students will attend and actively participate in two events related to their selected group. These can be events such as church services or meetings, community organization meetings, volunteer work at homeless shelters or food kitchens, attendance at support group meetings, fund-raising events, a school-related meeting or activity, etc. These activities must be sponsored by or provided for the particular group. Students will then complete a set of questions. This is not a paper. There is no need for a title page, abstract, citations, or a reference page in their submission. First person may be used in the answers. Based on these experiences, students will then post their most interesting findings in the Cultural Immersion Project Part 2 Forum on Blackboard, and comment on the posts of at least two other students.

Part 3. Individual Encounter and Synthesis: Students will conduct an in-depth 1-hour interview with an individual or married couple from their group to develop an understanding of the cultural factors that helped to shape that individual’s (or couple’s) cultural identity. A variety of issues may be explored in the interview. Once the interview is done, students will answer a set of questions. This is not a paper. There is no need for a title page, abstract, citations, or a reference page in their submission. First person may be used in the answers. Students will consider the interview and synthesize their distant, group, and individual experiences with this cultural group. Students will then share key discoveries in the Cultural Immersion Project Part 3 Forum on Blackboard, and comment on the posts of at least two other students.

Cultural Family Assessment: Students will have the opportunity to practice assessing a family by completing a cultural family assessment on a fictional family created for the purpose of this assignment. The student is to assess the fictional family using the cultural assessment on page 757 of the McGoldrick text. Information must be included under four main headings: Basic Demographic Information; Patterns of Individual, Family, and Social Functioning; Potential Problems for the Therapist, and Suggested Models of Family Therapy. Basic Demographic Information might include: (a) family members, (b) identified problem, (c) time of referral (i.e. why now?), (d) history of the problem, (e) life-cycle stages, (f) health history, (g) socioeconomic information, (h) cultural heritage, (i) belief systems, and (j) language and acculturation. Patterns of Individual, Family, and Social Functioning include: (a) family relationship history, (b) family biological factors, (c) individual factors, (d) immediate family, (e) extended family, (f) work and school, (g) sociocultural factors, (h) connection to the community, (i) migration history, (j) stressors and life cycle issues, (k) family resources and vulnerabilities, and (l) hypotheses about the case. Potential Problems for the Therapist should include any difficulty you might have engaging or working with the family members or other institutions associated with the family.
Suggested Models of Family Therapy should include the model(s) of family therapy that would work best with this family and why the model(s) are likely to be effective. The paper is to be 15-20 pages in length (not including the reference pages), and include at least 10 references formatted according to APA style, 6th edition. The final paper is worth 150 points toward your final grade.

Cultural Family Assessment Outline: An outline for the paper, including references is part of the final paper assignment and needs to include enough information to show you have gathered information for each section.

Cultural Family Assessment Presentation: Prepare a ten minute presentation on your final paper that includes the following elements: (a) a description of your family, (b) why you selected this family, and (c) four highlights from your paper that are particularly interesting to you. You are expected to practice your talk ahead of time. I want you have you to have fun with this assignment and let your creative minds take over!
