

2016 Scholarship Breakfast

Tuesday, April 12, 2016

Dear friends,

Welcome to the Annual Scholarship Breakfast! I am so pleased you could join us for this early morning celebration. I want to thank you — our generous donors, alumni, faculty, staff and friends — for supporting our students. We see the impact of your generosity every day in the faces of our students, and I'm glad you have the opportunity to see the impact of your actions in person today. Students, congratulations on your success this year and thank you for taking time from your academic schedules to attend this morning.

Today's celebration is a reflection of our students' appreciation of your generosity. Their education leads them to areas of research, discovery and professional growth — goals that many students might not have reached without your help. Furthermore, your kindness is perpetuated by the very students you see before you.

As we look forward to our centennial year in 2017, your steadfast support guarantees stability for our students regardless of tumultuous circumstances. Alaskans are not strangers to adversity, yet we possess the resilience to overcome even the most daunting odds through the collaboration and compassionate generosity you all so graciously demonstrate. Even more significant than our personal fortitude, we inspire each other. You are changing lives and inspiring the future leaders of tomorrow, and for that I thank you.

Sincerely,

On a Path to Discovery

UAF has a great variety of opportunities available to students, in the physical, academic and social spheres. Forrest Campnell is one student who takes advantage of all three realms. A soccer and tennis player in high school, Forrest has enjoyed some of UAF's niche athletic teams, including broom-ball. As a student, he switched majors from biological science to chemistry with a concentration in biochemistry and a double major in Spanish. He also works as a pharmacy technician, loves fishing and camping, and volunteers at the Veteran's Affairs clinic in Anchorage and with the Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity.

Giving is Good Business

Meg Nordale knows what it means to give back and be a part of your community. To her, these are fundamental to a sustainable business.

Meg is President of GHEMM Company and the immediate past president of the Association of General Contractors of Alaska. Both GHEMM and AGC are invested in educating Alaska's future workforce. GHEMM Company established the GHEMM Company Scholarship in 1999 to support students studying civil engineering who graduated from an Alaska high school. AGC has established three scholarships at UAF to support students within the College of Engineering and Mines, UAF's Community and Technical College as

Building a Sustainable Future

Sage Tixier is an electrical engineering major with a strong connection to the things that make us human. He is an avid volunteer, participating in the Gender & Sexuality Alliance, homelessness advocacy and Honors Society. Sage hails from Tok, where his mother raised him to value education and hard work. As a high-schooler, he volunteered at his local library, which couldn't afford to pay staff members. He also participated in the Alaska Summer Research Academy and Rural Alaska Honors Institute program, which first introduced him to the UAF family.

Sage appreciates the approachability of UAF staff and faculty. Their accessibility and willingness

One would think that a student with such an active schedule would need perfect health. Indeed, it's something many of us take for granted. However, Forrest has overcome chronic illness, present since childhood, that would have left many on the sidelines. Through a variety of treatments and a disciplined lifestyle, Forrest is able to explore Alaska and pursue his degree.

UAF's renowned research programs were enough to pull Forrest from the relatively temperate climate of Chugiak to the at-times frigid Interior. The extraordinary education incentives in Alaska combined with Forrest's numerous scholarships allowed him to obtain an outstanding education without creating a future of astronomical debt. Forrest hopes to embark on a nomadic excursion in a foreign land after graduation. Thankfully, the generosity of our donors has kept Forrest's post-graduation opportunities open to many possibilities.

well as the School of Management. More than 50 students have benefited this outstanding support. In addition, GHEMM Company has partnered with Design Alaska by providing matching gifts during KUAC's Fall and Spring fundraisers and regularly sponsors special events at the university.

By fostering both education and community resources, AGC and GHEMM are ensuring that tomorrow's workforce is prepared for the demands of an ever-evolving landscape. Meg notes that both organizations "strongly believe in educating individuals who have the ability to potentially work with and for" Alaskan businesses.

Meg incorporates lessons her father taught her about a business' relationship with the community. "You don't stay in business in your community without giving back to your community," she explained. The supportive environment provided by Fairbanks businesses helps UAF students turn their dreams into plans.

Though her leadership, Meg is taking steps to integrate businesses with the UAF community. She recognizes the unique opportunities in Alaska, and she does her part to ensure the future stewards of Alaska's communities and businesses have the best training and tools at their disposal.

to help is part of what he feels defines UAF and sets it apart from other universities.

In addition to the excellent research and classroom opportunities UAF has to offer, Sage has taken advantage of UAF's work programs. After serving as an intern with UAF Facilities Services' Design and Construction division, Sage was offered a summer job in which he will apply his academic training in a real-world environment. Through this work-study program, Sage is developing a proposal that focuses on reducing energy costs with the implementation of more sustainable technology. He hopes this experience on campus will segue into a career that advances the spectrum of energy resources and creates more accessible and practical solutions to the energy needs of the world.

Sage is quick to tell you that if it hadn't been for the scholarships he received this year, his college path would have likely been diverted. "The scholarship opportunities and assistance in finding your way," he said, are two of the most uniquely appealing things UAF has to offer.

THE NANOOK STRING TRIO

Rose Crelli

Class of 2017 | Glenmede Trust Music Scholarship; William R. and Dorothy Jane Wood Talent Grant

Annalisa Taylor

Class of 2017 | Gerson Family Memorial Scholarship; Edward K. and Alene R. Christiansen Music Scholarship; Gale L. Anderson Endowed Scholarship for Music

Sean Braendel

Class of 2017 | Albert O. ("Ole") Wahto Memorial Scholarship; Edward K. and Alene R. Christiansen Music Scholarship

The Nanook String Trio is formed of three UAF students, all of whom have performed as members of the Northern Lights String Orchestra, the Fairbanks Youth Orchestras and the Fairbanks Symphony Orchestra. First violinist Rose Crelli is a junior studying violin performance and music education. On viola is Annalisa Taylor, a junior studying music education and violin performance. Cellist Sean Braendel is also a junior pursuing a major in music. Rose and Annalisa are studying under Bryan Emmon Hall, and Sean is studying under Bob Olsen. The Nanook String Trio is honored to be playing at this event and they hope you enjoy the program we have prepared. The trio asserts that, "Without the generosity of scholarship donors, pursuing our dreams at UAF would not be possible."

SANDRA DEMMERT

Program Cover Artist

Class of 2016; Stuart S. Mackowiak Scholarship, Colin Gilmore Memorial Scholarship

Sandra Demmert was raised in Southeast Alaska in Ketchikan and Prince of Wales. With encouragement from her daughter, Sandra has found new ways to fulfill her potential. "I am Haida/Tlingit native and have worked as a drug and alcohol counselor for most of my adult life," she said. "I came back to college to continue to express my passion through Art." The UAF Art Department is home to many incredibly talented artists, and the excellent faculty and staff go above and beyond to hone the natural abilities of the students. "Every staff member that I have met has been nothing but helpful to my learning and has encouraged my forward movement towards my goal to graduate with my degree in art," Sandra said. As a non-traditional student, Sandra feels the classes are challenging but enjoyable, and that studying at UAF is a great adventure you don't want to miss.

Centennial Scholarship and Fellowship: Reaching Goals

The University of Alaska Fairbanks' 100 year anniversary is a milestone in our long legacy of educational excellence and achievement. We are constantly seeking ways to continue advancing and improving the student experience here at UAF. The Cornerstone Centennial Scholarship and Fellowship Initiative is one way in which we are taking steps toward that goal.

The Cornerstone Centennial Scholarship and Fellowship Initiative raises funds to support students by giving new scholarships and supplementing existing scholarships and fellowships.

Please join us as we continue to alleviate the financial struggles faced by so many of our brilliant and deserving students, and to encourage current and future generations to reach new heights. Contact Major Gift Officer Maggie Hess at MJHess@alaska.edu or 907-474-2601 to invest in Alaska's future with a gift to the Centennial Scholarship and Fellowship Initiative.

"The Cornerstone Centennial Scholarship and Fellowship Initiative Committee is dedicated to creating a legacy where education is more affordable at UAF. Through this focused effort, private funds will be raised to boost existing scholarship and fellowship awards, while creating new funds to support students at UAF. By helping students pursue their dreams and graduate with less student debt, we prepare them to enter the workforce ready to make an impact."
