As a UAF student, you are subject to the Honor Code. The University assumes that the integrity of each student and the student body as a whole will be upheld. Honesty is a primary responsibility of you and every other UAF student. It is your responsibility to help maintain the integrity of the student community including the reporting any observed violations to the Instructor or Program Coordinator. UAF's Honor Code is as follows:

1. Students will not collaborate on any quizzes, in-class exams, or take-home assignments that will contribute to their grade in a course, unless permission is granted by the course instructor. Only those materials permitted by the instructor may be used to assist in quizzes and exams. The use of study groups is encouraged.

- 2. Students will not represent the work of others as their own. A student will attribute the source of information not original with himself or herself (direct quotes or paraphrases) in compositions, theses and other reports. (Specifically prohibited for this course are reports composed by other students from previous course offerings and any Internet sources.)
- 3. No work submitted for one course may be submitted for credit in another course without the explicit approval of both instructors. Students may use the same report topic and references from other courses if the Instructor is provided with a graded copy of any similar submissions to show that an identical report has not been submitted for credit twice.

Violations of the Honor Code will result in a failing grade for the assignment and for the course in which the violation occurred. Violations of the Honor Code may result in suspension or expulsion.

Disability Services:

The Office of Disability Services implements the Americans with Disability Act (ADA), and insures that UAF students have equal access to the campus and course materials.
