Course Description

RD/ANS F435 Participatory Policy-Making in Tribal, State, & Federal Government 3 Credits

Offered Fall Odd-numbered years

This course analyzes the policymaking and lobbying processes of the American political system, with a focus on the relationship between tribes, U.S. Congress, federal agencies, and the U.S. Supreme Court. Uses comparative case studies of national, state of Alaska, and tribal issues, policies, and laws impacting rural Alaskans.

Course Goals

Students will understand the how various organizations interact in the local, state, and national policymaking process and develop the knowledge and skills needed to effectively participate in that process as tribal members, leaders, and citizens.

Student Learning Outcomes (more specific)

Students will:

- Examine the various arenas of policymaking including the legislature and bureaucracy.
- Define and identify the four common stages in the legislative policy-making process, agenda-setting, policy formulation, implementation, and policy evaluation as they apply to current policymaking trends.
- Recognize that policies are made and remade in a dynamic system.
- Analyze the effects of organized interests on policy-making by focusing on what they want, the strategies they use, their record of success, and the impacts on democratic process.
- Analyze how issues come to and are decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.
- Apply the lessons learned to their own participation, and the participation of rural Alaskan groups and organizations, in the national policymaking process.
- Define "lobbying," and recognize the role of lobbying in policymaking.

Instructional Methods

Course consists of two 90-minute sessions for 14 weeks. The teaching techniques will include lecture, case studies and student-led small group discussions either in person (on UAF campus) or by audio conferencing distance delivery. Blackboard is used for the distribution of class materials, uploading and sharing of student work, and grading.

Course Policies

Attendance

Attendance in class is required. "Participation" means that you attend class, show up on time, are prepared for class by doing the required readings before class, and attempt to answer questions when called upon. Participation is part of your grade. You may miss two class sessions for any reason and not be penalized on your grade. However, after two missed classes, you will start to lose participation points, which will negatively impact your grade.

Policy on Incomplete (I) and No Basis (NB) grades

No NB grades will be awarded in this course. A student who is not participating sufficiently in the course and who will obtain a "D" grade or lower will be advised of this before the final deadline for withdrawal and be given the opportunity to withdraw from the course. Students should review the syllabus and schedule and make sure that they can schedule the time needed for attendance and assignments in this course.

An "I" grade will be awarded only under truly extenuating circumstances and in cases where the student would have earned at least a "C" grade in the course. The student must have discussed the extenuating circumstance with the instructor as soon as it began to interfere with course-work in order to be considered for an "I" grade. If an "I" grade is awarded, the student will be expected to complete outstanding work within a short time period (weeks not months) unless a physical limitation dictates otherwise.

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is quoting from, paraphrasing or using specific material contained in any published work, e.g. books, periodicals, public documents, internet or another person's ideas without providing appropriate citations or recognitions. Self-plagiarism is using all or part of a paper that you wrote previously for a different class or assignment and failing to indicate that it is your earlier work. NOTE: if you copy material from a course lecture or web link to use for an assignment, and do not cite this material, it is considered to be plagiarism even if you agree with the author and would have written the same words yourself. Plagiarism can earn you an "F" grade in this course so if you have any doubts about how to recognize it please talk to the instructor.

Reflection Papers

Students are expected to complete three reflection papers (3-4 double-spaced pages in length) that respond to one or more of the assigned readings. The reflection papers are not intended to be summaries. Rather they are an opportunity for you to apply critical thinking skills to the materials/topics covered in this course. Use the following guiding questions: Did you agree or disagree with the information presented in the readings? Did you find them applicable to the context in which you live and work? What critical information was missing or overlooked that would have been useful for you to know?

White Paper

Students are expected to research and write a "white paper" (10 pages, single spaced) addressing the following:

- (1) Identify a current, contested, rural and/or Native Alaskan issue;
- (2) Research the interests/positions/debates and the relevant proposed or existing policies, laws, regulations, etc. at the tribal, local, state, and/or national levels;
- (3) Advocate a certain position that you see as the best way to go, or a certain solution that you see as best for the particular problem; and
- (4) Cite to your sources in-text and with a sources page consistent with the White Paper format provided.

White Paper/Presentation

Students are expected to prepare and present a 20-25 minute in-class presentation based upon the research and conclusions of their white paper. Students are encouraged to prepare a 10-12 slide Power Point presentation. Power Point presentations must be emailed to the instructor the day prior to your presentation.

White Paper

The final paper will consist of a 10 page "problem/solution" white paper (single – spaced). This is fundamentally a type of persuasive essay. It uses facts and logic to present a new solution to a serious problem that afflicts X group of people, or a business/industry, government, or organization. This type of white paper is designed to provide useful information to intended readers to help them understand an issue, solve a problem, and/or to make a decision.

The required white paper format for this class includes page-by-page footnotes with a page of endnotes at the end (as opposed to in-text APA citations & a reference page at the end). Within individual footnotes, students are required to use Bluebook format for legal materials and APA citation format for everything else. The endnotes must include the full APA citations for sources used within the main body of the white paper.

For more detailed guidance, read White Papers for Dummies, by Gordon Graham, Chapter 8 – The Problem/Solution: As Complex As Chocolate (pp. 143 – 170); Chapter 14 – Doing Research: Think Like a Lawyer (pp. 254 – 272); and Chapter 15 – Write Like a Journalist (pp. 273 – 303). Excerpts are loaded onto Blackboard.

UAF students are subject to the Student Code of Conduct.

UAF requires students to conduct themselves honestly and responsibly, and to respect the rights of others.

Honesty is a primary responsibility of yours and every other UAF student. The following are common guidelines regarding academic integrity:

Students will not represent the work of others as their own. Students will attribute the source of information not original with themselves (direct quotes or paraphrases) in compositions, theses and other reports.

No work submitted for one course may be submitted for credit in another course without the explicit approval of both instructors.

Alleged violations of the Code of Conduct will be reviewed in accordance with procedures specified in regents policy, university regulations and UAF rules and procedures. For additional information and details about the Student Code of Conduct, please visit www.uaf.edu/deanofstudents/.
